

Enter the 2009-2010 AOBA Student Design Competition!

The Alpaca Owners and Breeders Association (AOBA) is an organization of alpaca owners and breeders dedicated to the promotion and welfare of alpacas and their wonderful product - alpaca fiber.

Now in its 7th year, the AOBA Student Design Competition is open to college level textile and fashion design students in North America. No garment construction is needed, just a 15" by 20" design board with swatches and a one page essay.

“The International Year of Natural Fiber” was declared by the United Nations for the year 2009. Participate in this world wide event by creating a fashion or textile design using Alpaca - the Earth Friendly Fiber.

Alpacas are an environmentally friendly livestock that are not harmed by harvesting their end product – fleece!

For more information visit www.alpacafashion.com

All entries must be postmarked by November 15, 2009.